

Discover and join a vibrant network of creatives and changemakers working to protect Europe's waters through art, science, and community collaboration.

Join a growing network of artists, scientists, communities, and organisations working together to protect and restore Europe's water bodies. The PartArt4OW Ecosystem Map is a space to share, discover, and celebrate creative and collaborative initiatives for ocean and water care.

Dear friends,

We're happy to invite you to explore and join the PartArt4ow Ecosystem Map – a dynamic network of artists, scientists, communities, and other stakeholders, all united in the mission to restore and protect Europe's water bodies.

You can explore the map here: <https://partart4ow.eu/ecosystem>

This digital, interactive map showcases inspiring initiatives, research, artworks, and stories from across Europe. It brings together artists, scientists, community groups, cultural organisations, and ocean lovers—all helping to raise awareness and take action for water and ocean conservation.

Whether you're an artist, marine scientist, or a community member involved in an art-science ocean or water project, your work can be part of this collective movement.

You can submit to the platform your initiative, cultural product, or organisation through this form: <https://forms.gle/T5mUDMaQFDQ1U6pM8>

Also, we are gathering views on Science-Art Collaboration for Ocean and Water Literacy, Protection and Restoration. This is a short survey where we collect the opinions of various stakeholders across Europe, aiming to understand the challenges faced by science-art/creativity collaborations in the fields of ocean and water literacy, preservation, and restoration. The survey also aims to explore ways to strengthen such collaborations and identify good practices and we would appreciate your views. You can access the survey here: <https://forms.gle/3XwuT2zT2wqrRvEFA>

Let's grow this beautiful map together and inspire more people to care for our waters through creativity and collaboration!

Best,

The PartArt4OW Team
